PRESS RELEASE

National Coalition of 100 Black Women Name New President

On October 2, 2008 the members of the National Coalition of 100 Black Women voted for a new president – Ms. Daffney Moore.

Ms. Moore has been a member of the NCBW St. Louis Metropolitan Chapter since 2002 and has served and/or led various committees since her inception. She began with being the chair of the Economic Development committee and then became the Vice President of Programs. While showing her tenacity and dedication, she worked her way up to the presidency of this prestigious organization. As president, Ms. Moore’s goal is to give the organization a fresh new look while making the organization a well known name in the community. “This is a great organization that the community needs to be more aware of,” says Ms. Moore.

This year marks the organization’s 25th Anniversary and the organization is looking to bring back some of its old members while inducting new members to join the mission of the organization - Empowering Women in Leadership and Community Service.

Should you want more information about this organization or would like to join their efforts in the community please email Ms. Moore at ncbwstl@yahoo.com
